AIRBALTIC TO RECRUIT OVER 100 PILOTS IN 2018

News / Airlines, Maintenance / Trainings

The Latvian airline airBaltic in February will host an airBaltic "Pilot Open Days" initiative in several cities, including Vilnius, Helsinki, Amsterdam and Stockholm. The initiative targets different types of pilots willing to become part of airBaltic flight crew. The airline is planning to recruit more than 100 pilots in 2018.

Pauls Calitis, Senior Vice President Flight Operations of airBaltic: "An excellent team is essential to our successful operation and airBaltic's growth over the past years has confirmed that. Our route map is expanding, the fleet is growing and more passengers travel with us. Such development requires our team to be highly motivated. And naturally, due to the production increase, airBaltic will recruit more pilots this year. Working at airBaltic has many advantages for all positions, but considering our growth and the changing pilot industry, we are now further improving our pilot remuneration system."
