MID-AIR EMERGENCIES OVER FRANCE

News / Airlines

Two short-haul flights have declared on-board emergencies in the air above France.

A Ryanair flight from Liverpool to Spain and a Germanwings flight from Dusseldorf to Faro have both been redirected.

Both planes have been redirected to Bordeaux airport after declaring on-board emergencies.

A spokesman for Ryanair confirmed that the emergency is not terrorism-related, adding that the flight had been forced to make an emergency landing after a passenger became ill.

Image not found or type unknown
Flight path of the Ryanair flight to Alicante.

Flight path of the Ryanair flight to Alicante.

Image not found or type unknown
Flight path of the Germanwings plane to Faro, Portugal.

Flight path of the Germanwings plane to Faro, Portugal.

He added: "This flight from Liverpool to Alicante diverted to Bordeaux after a customer became ill on board. The crew called ahead to request medical assistance, the aircraft landed normally and the customer disembarked and was met by medics for further treatment.

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.

"The aircraft will depart to Alicante shortly and Ryanair apologised to customers for the short delay to their flight."

The Germanwings flight 4U9642 is also understood to have been diverted after an elderly male passenger was reported "heart problems".

18 MAY 2016

SOURCE: THE TELEGRAPH
ARTICLE LINK:
https://ids.50skyshades.com/news/airlines/mid-air-emergencies-over-france

© 2015-2026 50SKYSHADES.COM — Reproduction, copying, or redistribution for commercial purposes is prohibited.