News / Business aviation, Maintenance / Trainings

July 20, 2022 will be a big day for DC Aviation as the company will hold an opening celebration to present its new hangar at Oberpfaffenhofen Airport. The approximately 100 invited guests will experience 6,000 square meters of hangar space with a designer lounge, a state-of-the-art conference area, and a separate crew lounge at the gates of Munich.

At the newly established site, the business jet operator will offer aircraft handling and line maintenance for customer aircraft, with its own personnel. With its short distances, Oberpfaffenhofen Executive Airport offers the best conditions for the business aviation provider.

Michael Kuhn, Chief Executive Officer of DC Aviation, commented: "The opening of the new location at Oberpfaffenhofen Airport is another milestone in the strategic expansion of our presence. In the future, our customers will benefit from the excellent connections to the Munich business location and the Five Lakes region. Only 25 kilometers from the city center, Oberpfaffenhofen Airport is more conveniently located than Munich Airport. With our own parking lot at the hangar, easy check-in, and direct access to the aircraft, transfer times for our customers have been considerably shortened."

DC Aviation operates one of the most versatile business fleets in Europe. In addition to its newly established subsidiary in Munich, the premium provider operates a 5,000 square meter hangar at Stuttgart Airport as well as a 12,500 square meter maintenance facility at Al Maktoum International Airport in Dubai.
